Hon, W. M. Deane will go on leave next month, and it is not likely he will return. Major-General Gordon will, we understand, be appointed Acting Captain Superintendent of Police, and Major Dompster Acting Superintendent of Victoria Gaol. Major Dompstor, the Adjutant of the Force, has acted on several occasions as Superintendent AVE JUST RECEIVED of Police and has gained considerable experience. It is, of course, according to the eternal fitness of things governmental that he should be appointed to the Gaol, instead of to the position of which he has had several years' experience.

WE referred some time ago to the efforts that were being made by the Rhenish Mission to extend their medical mission work in Tungkun on the East River, where the Rev. W. Dietrich has been labouring with great zeal and activity. The town has a population of 300,000 inhabitants and the surrounding districts are very populous. 83 There is thus a large field for mission work, and the labourers are indeed few. With the help of many kind friends in Hongkong On the 25th Instant, at St. John's and elsewhere, Mr Dietrich was able about HALDANE eighteen months ago to build a small in-Registrar- firmary. From that time up to the end of last year 4,100 patients were treated, and on 40 of these severe operations were performed with successful results. The work The publication of this issue commenced was ably carried on by a native surgeon trained by Dr Kerr, but Mr Dietrich was not satisfied until the Society had sent him a European doctor to take the entire direction of the medical work and give it a new impulse. This task, however, will not be a lightone in such an extensive field. Additional accummodation must be get, especially a second building for females, the mixing of the sexes in a hospital being repugnant to Chinese ideas. Mr Dietrich is appealing again to his friends to support the Rhenish Missionary Society in this good work and At the opening of Parliament, the Queen's the Chinese themselves will continue their speech referred to the warlike preparations help. Medical Mission work is not only a of other European states, which necessitated means of alleviating suffering, but is, as is an increase in our precautionary measures now acknowledged on all hands, one of the best aids to the spread of the Gospel. THE Chinese Times says :- The Imperial Government, at the instance of the Vicerov Li, will probably maintain Yuen, the Chinese Resident in Corea, in his post at Secul for an indefinite time longer, if only to show they disregard the Corean King's protest. The decision is foulish, as one of the first signs of disapproval and disgust will come from Japan, where the Tokio Government regards the follies of Yuen in Corea, and consider his retention not only injurious in a very grave degree to China, but also dangerous to Japan. The relations between China and Japan, which ought to be cordial at all times, the common interest being absolutely identical, will now be clouded over. The course taken by China in this matter is perilous to her, and is contrary to international law as well as to morality and prudence. It is really folly to insist on inflicting upon Cores, a man so much detested as Yuen is there, and he ought to be removed to some place where the special qualities which he has might be

Owing to the opposition to the railway from Tientain to Tungehow, we believe that no contract has been, or will be made at present for the rails for which tenders were received by the Company on the 18th. Rumours of a repetition of some of the attempts which were made by foreigners at the previous reception of tenders to obtain undue advantages over competitors have perhaps no better foundation than the runours of diplomatic pressure being put on the Directors to force them to purchase materials with respect to the nationality of extension of the railway appears to proceed from a combination of the Tutors of the Emperor and a well-known member of the G. Such men, when they possess courage, are very influential in China, and both the Sixth Prince, who is very rich, and the Seventh, who would probably like to be so, are accustomed to cower under the lash of their somewhat free-spoken and not over-temperate elder brother. FIRE ON BOARD THE S.S. BENLAWERS.

Fire was discovered to have broken out in the hold of the s.s. > > CHINESE ADDRESS TO THE HON J. STEWART LOCKHART.

The following is a translation of an address—a quaint and rather unique procan so well, we may continue to secure in- by some Chinese friends to the Hon. J. Stewart Lockhart on the occasion of his marriage and of his leaving the Colony for a holiday :—

An Address from the Merchants of Hong. kong to the Honourable J. H. Stewart Lockhart, Protector of Chinese. It has been well said that no great morit can be attained by a man without mora worth, and no great thing whatever can be achieved by a man without intellectual ability. From olden times, when they recorded merit on flags and robes, and important services on bamboos and cloth. those who were distinguished in their day and whose beneficent influence was transmitted to posterity, according to authentic history, were certainly all men of masterly intellect and large philanthropy. Only such are worthy of notice in this connec-

You, honoured Sir, have been as a bright star shining down on the lowly weed, as a gentle wind blowing over the grassy plain. In the quiet of your court the flowers have fallen undisturbed, and within the precincts of your juradiction the herb of felicity has grown. Long have the people loved you as the sun, and your kindly influence has spread like the spring. By your vigorous treatment of kidnapping and alave-dealing the simple and foolish have found protection. For the establishment of the Poloung-kuk both men and women owe you a debt of gratitude. Moreover you have thus saved people out of fire and water and restored them to hearth and home; for which children may well sing your praise and matrons bless you for overmore.

Now that the crimson slippers are going to move, and the lute is waiting to be played.

with you, honoured Sir, it is, as when Le Pi took a wife, 'office first and marriage after: 'or like Su Tung-Po. when he went home and 'took his place among the renowned.' By and by will be seen in the seat of honour, and with head-dress gaily decked with flowers, the bride illustrious as Un Shinkwan or Mang Kwong; anon also the precions clive branches will be growing on the lawn, the future glory of the State. The praise of merit already grandly won, it is most fit that happiness all complete should follow. And now, while all the people of every grade and class esteem. and love you, while the multitudes not small to whom your virtue and geniality have been meat and drink, feel like clinging to your carriage and laying their bodies before the wheels to prevent your going. much more do we the elders of the people, who, as we have waited on your illustrious person or attended to your written instructions, have experienced so much courtesy and gracious consideration, increasaudible on the road, we bless wou. Sir, with the song of the Marquis of Loo festive and glad with his beauteous wife and his hale old mother. We are reminded on this occasion of the sweet pear tree which could never be cut down because of the grace and goodness of him who once lodged under its shade. And we fondly wish that, on some early day, your return to office may be playfully met by the children riding on bamboo horses as was that of Kwck K'ap.

Accept, honoured Sir, these rude and inadequate words of ours which we offer with the greatest sincerity and respect. and Moses, be re-elected to the Committee | praying that peace and all happiness may ever attend you.
